NEW YORK PASHIONS.

Rough Materials in Vogue-Styles in Mak-ing-Coats and Capes-Millinery Colors. Special Correspondence of the Intelligencer.

New York, Oct. 5 .- Rough, rougher roughest, may consistently be said of the different grades of cheviots, brought out for fall and winter street ware, and while considerable variety of design and coloring is apparent, yet general styles are much the same as those of last winter. The ordinary cheviot is completely distanced by that in very large plaids, which is an extremely rude looking material, yet soft to the touch and expensive because stylish. Real Irish frieze is another fabric likely to prove very popular for general wear, and is in great diversity of rich, dark shades, shot with white, crimson or yellow; sometimes all three. Scotch shodes, shot with white, crimson or yellow; sometimes all three. Scotch homespun is also prominent in this class of material, and over the subdued surface, wavy slabs of a lighter shade are woven lengthwise; standing out clearly by reason of the sombre background. French camel's hair with Astrakhan stripes will be much in vogue with those who are not partial to an all over rough fabric, and the never ending variety and beauty in which the stripes are arranged, justly entitles this material to a considerable degree of favor. Chevron and diagonal stripes are conspicuous in new styles and two shades of the same color with intermixture of dark Egyptian red are often combined in one fabric with excellent effect. Plaids, while not occupying the foremost position in dress goods, will be worn to a considerable extent in both rough and smooth finish. Embroidered cashmere re-appear, very similar in many respects to those of last winter, except that jet beading now adds new beauties to braiding and embroidery. Designs and prices are as varied as colors and combinations: commencing at $11 a pattern, they run beyond $100.

Skirts are now as carefully fitted as waists, and although the princesse is supposed to lead in style, it is noticeable that among new costumes there are quite as many of the bell as of the former. So far, rough materials are very plainly made, waists being either the long cont bodice, or round basque cut into squares, or jacket fronts and long basque backs, with three large buttons on each side. In many new costumes for morning, large, handsome buttons are the only trimming, while some new diagonals and Cheviots have velvet collar, rovers and sleeves, with a bias velvet band on the skirt, headed by a narrow galloon. As the fall styles show a continuance of long waists, the R. & G. is undoubtedly the corset of the hour, being so graceful in its outlines that those who understand the true art of dress, prefer it above all others. The coat bodice bids fair to be more popular than ever, both for house and street wear, and in remodeling dresses, the quite as many of the bell as of the forwear, and in remodeling dresses, the pointed basque proves itself a valuable

CAPES AND COATS,

Which are longer than ever, often falling below the knee, come in black, blue, all the brown shades or very dark Egyptian red and in both rough and plain material are often loaded down with jet trimming or nail heads, or when of figured or striped material, bordered with fur or coque feathers. The long coat, with or without hip seams and pocket flaps is very fashionable, and sleeves, collar, front and skirt below the waist are covered with jet in floral or leaf patterns, presenting an elegant appearance and correspondingly expensive. On plain colored beaver, jet figures look conspicuous, therefore black velvet, plush or fine black cloth trimmed with bead passementeric suits a refined taste better than a mixture of colors. Long, flowing capes are Egyptian red and in both rough and suits a refined taste better than a mix-ture of colors. Lonz, flowing capes are equally fashionable, and are either trimmed throughout with nail heads, or have a V front and back of jet passe-menteric with shoulder piece to match. In many stylish garments the V is formed of nail heads, a border around the cape being optional. Collars are high and flaring; usually edged with feather trimming, and instead of sleeves the hand is passed through a slit in the plaits.

Vassar-Sailors would be shelved completely, were they not redeemed by the pletely, were they not redeemed by the stylish variety that will be seen this winter. Soft crowns are used on almost every round shape, also on large, flaring hats, and as velvet is more popular than hats, and as velvet is more popular than any other millinery material, beautiful combinations in form and color ensue, combinations in form and color ensue, set off by jet ornaments of every description. Charming little hats turned up at the back and having a fluted brim in front, are entirely of jet or iridescent beads on very fine wire, and outlines of hats come in jet, to be filled in with veivet, ribbon or feathers. Ribbons are in shaded moire, brocaded, plain, double-faced satin pean de soie, which will likely be a great favorite. Green and vellow are the leading millinery colors, but several tints of Egyptian red and also golden brown will be much employed,

How the Boys are Treated. Special Correspondence of the Intelligencer.

PRUNTYTOWN, W. VA., Oct. 6 .- Albert Riffle, who escaped from the West Virginia Reform School a few days ago and made his way to his home in Upshur county, was promptly returned to the institution by his stepfather, Mr. institution by his stepfather, Mr. Perine. Albert gave no reason for going except that he was home-sick. Mr. Perine has set a good example. Let all parents and guardians do likewise and there will be very few attempts to escape. A reward had been offered in this case, but Mr. Perine would not claim it. The idea that some people have in regard to the severity of punishment in cases of this kind is an ishment in cases of this kind is an erroneous one. The punishment is justly and reasonably administered and is always reported to the board of directors. directors.

One year ago there were six boys in the school; there are now sixty-five. There are but two industries at present, viz: shoe-making and tailoring. Others will be added soon. The boys are re-quired to attend a session of school in the forenoon, also in the evening, and to perform industrial work of some kind in the afternoon. They are pro-hibited from all bad habits such as hibited from all bad habits such as swearing, using tobacco in any form, fighting, quarrelling, etc., and are taught pure and noble principles. A fine new building is nearing completion, and will add much to the comfort.
